Llyswen Trolley Station Topic at Genealogical Society Meeting

HOLLIDAYSBURG, PA --- The picturesque Llyswen trolley station has charmed passengers and passers-by for over a century. This building's architectural genealogy will be discussed at the upcoming Blair County Genealogical Society meeting, 7 PM, Thursday, September 21, at Roller Hojeth Memorial Library, Scotch Valley Road.

Judy Coutts, AIA, Architect, will explain how the design and construction of the building intersects with figures from Altoona's history. Attendees will learn about the wealthy landowner, the well-connected financier, and the creative designers involved in the development of this local landmark. They will also learn about the value that architects bring to building design.

Coutts is an architect from Altoona with 31 years of experience on architectural projects of varying sizes, from houses to hospitals, from a nuclear and chemical waste handling facility for the National Institutes of Health to satellite earth stations for NORAD. Hers is the first woman-owned architectural firm in Blair County, and is certified as a Woman Business Enterprise by the Pennsylvania Department of General Services.

The meeting is free and open to the public.
